GENERAL INFORMATION ON

ENVIRONMENTALLY SUSTAINABLE TRANSPORTATION (EST) 集団研修「環境的に持続可能な交通」 JFY 2009 <Type: Solution Creation / 類型:課題解決促進型> NO. J09-00856 / ID. 0980844 From August 2009 to January 2010 Phases in Japan: From September 28, 2009 to November 7, 2009

This information pertains to one of the Training and Dialogue Programs of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), which shall be implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.

I. Concept

Background

In many cities in the world we have seen drastic population growth and economic expansion induced by industrialization and urbanization for the past several decades. The rapid growth has also brought about an expansion of demands in the transport sector, but many of the cities have been developed without well-designed appropriate plans, resulting in serious delays in the development of the required infrastructure and the provision of public services. As a result, many cities have been seriously affected by various socio-economic and environmental problems relating to transport. These range from air pollution, public health, noise pollution and traffic congestion caused by automobiles to the subsequent economic losses such as inefficient use of energy and loss of potential natural habitats and land resources.

The growth of the transport demands is indispensable in the context of socio-economy. However, the concept of environmentally sustainable transportation (hereinafter referred to as 'EST') is that such a growth must be achieved in harmony with environmental conservation and protection, and in this respect EST is regarded as transport system which meets the needs of the present without spoiling the needs of the future generations.

Recognizing the importance of EST and the required actions to be taken at the national and international levels, the Japanese government, with cooperation from OECD, held the "International Conference on Environmentally Sustainable Transport in the Asia Region" in March 2003 in Nagoya city, where the concept of EST was introduced to Japan and other Asian countries. This was followed by the "Manila Policy Dialogue on Environment and Transport in the Asian Region", held in January, 2004 in Manila, Philippines, and participating countries were encouraged to take concrete steps towards the promotion of EST. The Manila Statement, adopted by the participants at the conference, called for (a) the formulation of National EST Strategies-cum-Action-Plans, and (b) the establishment of a Regional EST Forum and subsidiary expert groups.

In line with Manila Statement, in 1-2 August 2005, the 1st meeting of the Regional EST Forum in Asia was held in Nagoya, Aichi pref. as the EXPO affiliated program. The Aichi Statement, which officially launched the Regional EST Forum, was adopted in the meeting, calling for (a) integrated formulation and implementation of policies, strategies and programs in both national and regional levels in 12 thematic areas such as public health (b) promotion of cooperation among international organizations, experts, NGO, Civil Societies and all other stakeholders. UNCRD was asked to be a facilitator to coordinate them.

In the recent years, soaring prices of natural resources such as crude oil all over the world has disrupted the world economy, and it was one of the key issues on the agenda at the Hokkaido G8 Summit held in July 2008. Combined with the prevention of global warming, it is considered to be increasingly important to develop such eco-friendly transport systems by restraining the use of automobiles and encouraging instead the use of public transport systems.

With these backgrounds, JICA has implemented the training program on the theme of urban environment and transport to build the capacity of officials in the field of urban environment and transportation since 2004 with the aim of increasing awareness and encouraging action to facilitate changeover to environment-friendly means of transport. In particular, the new program starting this year also aims to provide the participants with a better understanding of the concept of EST and a venue for sharing their ideas and experiences to incorporate the concept. The program also offers the participants an opportunity not only to learn from Japanese experiences but to exchange ideas, experiences, and technical expertise among the participants.

The program on EST, fiscal year 2009, is organized by Chubu International Center, one of the JICA regional centers located in Nagoya city, and implemented by United Nations Centre for Regional Development (UNCRD).

For what?

Environment-friendly EST is becoming increasingly important and considered as the future transport system in many countries. The program aims to raise awareness for its importance and to call for action to promote EST introduction with the initiatives of the governmental organizations related to urban transport and environment in the participating countries.

For whom?

This program is offered to mid-level administrative officials who belong to one of the following organizations; the environmental section in the Ministry of Transport, the transport section in the Ministry of Environment, or the relevant organizations.

How?

Participants will have opportunities to learn about various approaches and strategies to implement EST promotion in Japan. On the basis of the training program the participants will formulate an Action Plan describing what the participants will be doing after they return to home country. Two participants will be accepted per country each year for the next three (3) years, establishing and expanding a network of the participants for effective implementation of the final Action Plan, which is to be drafted, reviewed and finalized over a period of three years.

For Your Reference

JICA and Capacity Development

The key concept underpinning JICA operations since its establishment in 1974 has been the conviction that "capacity development" is central to the socioeconomic development of any country, regardless of the specific operational scheme one may be undertaking, i.e. expert assignments, development projects, development study projects, training programs, JOCV programs, etc.

Within this wide range of programs, Training Programs have long occupied an important place in JICA operations. Conducted in Japan, they provide partner countries with opportunities to acquire practical knowledge accumulated in Japanese society. Participants dispatched by partner countries might find useful knowledge and re-create their own knowledge for enhancement of their own capacity or that of the organization and society to which they belong.

About 460 pre-organized programs cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs and are being customized to address the specific needs of different target organizations, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan was the first non-Western country to successfully modernize its society and industrialize its economy. At the core of this process, which started more than 140 years ago, was the "adopt and adapt" concept by which a wide range of appropriate skills and knowledge have been imported from developed countries; these skills and knowledge have been adapted and/or improved using local skills, knowledge and initiatives. They finally became internalized in Japanese society to suit its local needs and conditions.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from this "adoption and adaptation" process, which, of program, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories. We presume that such experiences, both successful and unsuccessful, will be useful to our partners who are trying to address the challenges currently faced by developing countries.

However, it is rather challenging to share with our partners this whole body of Japan's developmental experience. This difficulty has to do, in part, with the challenge of explaining a body of "tacit knowledge," a type of knowledge that cannot fully be expressed in words or numbers. Adding to this difficulty are the social and cultural systems of Japan that vastly differ from those of other Western industrialized countries, and hence still remain unfamiliar to many partner countries. Simply stated, coming to Japan might be one way of overcoming such a cultural gap.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them reach their developmental objectives.
