TRAINING CIRCULAR

Subject: Knowledge Co-Creation Program on "Adaptive Watershed Management to Climate Change: Disaster Risk Reduction and Ecosystem Conservation" to be held online from 07.07.2022 to 12.08.2022 under the Technical Cooperation Program of the Government of Japan.

The undersigned is directed to state that the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) has invited applications for Knowledge Co-Creation Program on "Adaptive Watershed Management to Climate Change: Disaster Risk Reduction and Ecosystem Conservation" to be held online from 07.07.2022 to 12.08.2022 under the Technical Cooperation Program of the Government of Japan.

2. The program aims to an adaptation to global climate change from viewpoints of drainage basin management. Under global climate change, we will have higher risk in river management: the fluvial regime changes quickly and also discharge at rainy season easily exceeds the former level. We cannot decrease the disaster risk caused by future climate change by a further hard works such as a big dam and/or embankment construction, since it will be difficult to construct these structures infinitively.

3. The applying organizations are expected to nominate to mid level working officers in charge of flood control, forest management, erosion control, watershed management or ecosystem conservation projects within organizations for at least 5 years experience. The applicant should be university graduates or: have competent command over spoken and written English; must be in good health (both physically and mentally). More information may be seen in the general information brochure.

4. In addition, the following information in respect of the nominated officers may please be mentioned while furnishing the nomination:-

- a) Whether attended any foreign training program in the past? If so, the duration/details thereof;
- b) Whether clear from vigilance angle;
- c) Age;
- d) Whether working in North East State/I&K;
- e) A brief in 50-100 words justifying the nomination.

5. This course is completely online and the participating organizations are expected to allow the participants to participate in this online live streaming everyday between around 19:00 and 21:00 in Japan Standard Time (JST).

6. It is, therefore, requested that the nomination of suitable candidates may please be forwarded (in two copies) to this Department in JICA's prescribed format duly authenticated by the HOD of the concerned Ministry/Department/State Governments/UTs in accordance with the eligibility criteria

7. The applications should reach this Department through the Administrative Ministry/Department not later than 27.05.2022. Nominations received after the prescribed date may not be considered. An advance copy may be sent to the JICA India Office via courier or email at ShekarD.ID@jica.go.jp under intimation to DoPT at email id jitesh.gupta@nic.in or kailash.k@nic.in. The details of the program (General Information Brochure) and application form may be drawn from the website of DoPT.

JFY 2022

NO. 202107956J001

Online Program Period : From July 7 to August 12, 2022

This information pertains to one of the JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Program (Group & Region Focus) of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), which shall be implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.

JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Program (KCCP)

The Japanese Cabinet released the Development Cooperation Charter in February 2015, which stated, “In its development cooperation, Japan has maintained the spirit of jointly creating things that suit partner countries while respecting ownership, intentions and intrinsic characteristics of the country concerned based on a field-oriented approach through dialogue and collaboration. It has also maintained the approach of building reciprocal relationships with developing countries in which both sides learn from each other and grow and develop together.” JICA believes that this ‘Knowledge Co-Creation Program’ will serve as a foundation of mutual learning process.

I. Concept

Background

Global warming, which is generally considered to stem from increased emissions of greenhouse gases (e.g. carbon dioxide), has caused climate change on a global scale, including significant variations in rainfall amounts. Developing countries in particular experience frequent cyclones/hurricanes and resultant heavy rain that has developed to unexpected levels, causing a corresponding increase in damage to human life and property. Meanwhile, conventional flood countermeasures such as dams and levees are often found to have adverse effects on the ecosystem in watershed areas.

For these reasons, an adaptive watershed management approach that integrates flood countermeasures and ecosystem conservation rather than viewing them as incompatible is being stressed on an international level; the dissemination of such an approach and the advancement of human resources in developing countries represent effective support measures enabling these regions to deal with climate change.

Motivation

This group training program is designed for mid-level working and senior administrative officers of organizations operating watershed management projects, and aims to share adaptive watershed management methods among them.

Methodology

Participants will have opportunities to have mainly lectures including field studies and discussions. Participants will also formulate final report including an action plan describing what the organization will do after the participants complete the training program putting the knowledge and ideas acquired and discussed among others into their on-going activities.

Participants will have online KCCP program which includes series of lectures, and online discussions.

What is “Adaptive Management of Drainage Basin”?

It aims an adaptation to global climate change from viewpoints of drainage basin management. Under global climate change, we will have higher risk in river management: the fluvial regime changes quickly and also discharge at rainy season easily exceeds the former level. We cannot decrease the disaster risk caused by future climate change by a further hard works such as a big dam and/or embankment construction, since it will be difficult to construct these structures infinitely. It will be better to reduce the disaster risk by alternative countermeasures such as construction of retention pools and an appropriate control of flooded water. Besides, reducing watershed runoff and soil erosion through afforestation and sustainable forest management can be a temporary and/or additional disaster risk reduction measure. This is closely related to another important issue: biodiversity conservation. Especially a suitable management of riparian zone which is always rich in biodiversity, but in many places its ecosystem has been degraded or damaged by hard river works and urbanization will be also effective for the soil conservation in the watershed. Our new training course aims to reduce the vulnerability of our society by using an adaptation management in drainage basin. It proposes a new drainage- basin management system which adjusts to present and future natural conditions by reducing the vulnerability, and by increasing the resilience to global climate change.

JICA and Capacity Development

Technical cooperation is people-to-people cooperation that supports partner countries in enhancing their comprehensive capacities to address development challenges by their own efforts. Instead of applying Japanese technology per se to partner countries, JICA's technical cooperation provides solutions that best fit their needs by working with people living there. In the process, consideration is given to factors such as their regional characteristics, historical background, and languages. JICA does not limit its technical cooperation to human resources development; it offers multi-tiered assistance that also involves organizational strengthening, policy formulation, and institution building.

Implementation methods of JICA's technical cooperation can be divided into two approaches. One is overseas cooperation by dispatching experts and volunteers in various development sectors to partner countries; the other is domestic cooperation by inviting participants from developing countries to Japan. The latter method is the Knowledge Co-Creation Program, formerly called Training Program, and it is one of the core programs carried out in Japan. By inviting officials from partner countries and with cooperation from domestic partners, the Knowledge Co-Creation Program provides technical knowledge and practical solutions for development issues in participating countries.

The Knowledge Co-Creation Program (Group & Region Focus) has long occupied an important place in JICA operations. About 400 pre-organized courses cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs is being customized by the different target organizations to address the specific needs, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan, as the first non-Western nation to become a developed country, built itself into a country that is free, peaceful, prosperous and democratic while preserving its tradition. Japan will serve as one of the best examples for our partner countries to follow in their own development.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from a process of adoption and adaptation, of course, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories.

Through Japan's progressive adaptation and application of systems, methods and technologies from the West in a way that is suited to its own circumstances, Japan has developed a storehouse of knowledge not found elsewhere from unique systems of organization, administration and personnel management to such social systems as the livelihood improvement approach and governmental organization. It is not easy to apply such experiences to other countries where the circumstances differ, but the experiences can provide ideas and clues useful when devising measures to solve problems.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them reach their developmental objectives.
